UNDERSTANDING MEXICO.

Develope Dixon as an Industrial and Trading Center.

News from Mexico has a way of being discouraging.

During the past few years it has been better than usual. Obregon and Calles seemed, at times, in a fair way to give he troubled nation a peace and an order that would be more or less enduring.

But now the news is of the old, depressing tenor-revolt, the marching of troops, the confused cries of "liberty!" and 'freedom!" and the other usual paraphernalia of political turnmoil below the Rio Grande.

To one who lives north of that river the whole business is highly confusing. Portes Gil, it had seemed, was doing his pest to follow in the footsteps of his predecessors and give his country the best in the way of democracy and stability hat it could assimilate. The religious troubles, to be sure, had remained painfully unsettled; yet one of the governors, notifying Gil of his revolt, announced that he was inspired by a desire to carry out Obregon's policies-which, surely, must mean that religion is not the moving force in this out-

It is all very perplexing. Our first inclination, probably, is to say, "Oh, well, those people aren't capable of selfgovernment. Let them stew in their own juices. Sooner or later, if they can't settle things, we'll probably have to go down there and settle things for them. That will be expensive and bothersome, but probably it can't be helped.'

Yet, after all, the Mexicans are only going through the same phase that we ourselves passed through a few years ago. We were better trained for it than they and we went through it with less trouble, but the basis of the thing is the

Democracy is still a dream that is only partly realized. In this country it still operates with a good deal of creaking and stalling; let the recent oil scandals serve to remind us of that. In Mexico the creaking and stalling are far worse, which is only natural, since Mexico has been at it a shorter

The cure for the ills of democracy, according to the old broverb, is more democracy. Mexico's trouble, in the past, has been that this cure never was applied. Each brief experiment in democracy was followed by a dictatorship. Some of these dictatorships were good and some very bad, but the het result of all of them was that the Mexican people were anable to get experience in the extremely difficult art of governing themeslves.

Because of this, the Mexican people break into revolt easly. Our best course is not to condemn or to interfere, but to ry to understand and to lend what help we can to the forces hat are making for peace and stability.

, Eventually the Mexicans will work out their own destiny. They will not do it this year, nor the next; the process will be a long one, and it will continue for a while to be marked by bloodshed. Any solution that is not of their own devising will not be permanent.

It behooves us, therefore, to be patient and understanding. Mexico's fight is our fight, after all. If we simply assume an attitude of superiority, and talk patronizingly of "ignorant spicks," we won't help matters at all.

Primo de Rivera, Spanish dictator, recently promulgated a set of rules designed to protect pedestrians. Any motorst whose car hits a pedestrian gets six months in prison. Any motorist whose car kills a pedestrian gets 12 years. In each case the motorist is assumed to be at fault. It makes ao difference how he was driving or how the pedestrian was walking. If his car hits a man, the driver goes to prison.

The Spanish dictator, if he enforces these laws, probably will save the lives of pedestrians. At the same time, it is guite likely that he will kill motoring in Spain.

A Mannish Coat

that never goes out of style

For years and years women have liked something in their wardrobe that is mannish-looking.

There is a trimness and smartness in a mannish coat that you cannot get in strictly feminine apparel.

The Knit-tex Coat for women is designed by a man's designer and made in a man's tailor shop. Its only concessions to femininity are in small details of sleeve, shoulders and slenderness of line.

If it were changed in any way, it would no longer be a strictly mannish coat. Therefore, it is always in style.

Annual Hatch of Continental Hatchery of Illinois at Polo Reaches Half Million Mark

Polo, Mar. — Grant B. Burman, resident of Continental Hatchery of President of Continental Hatchery of Illinois, reports that their output of Continental chicks has reached $00,-000 chicks a season. Poultrymen have found that it is much more profitable to buy these husky chicks from State Accredited Flocks and there is a demand for every one of them.

Within the last few years, some poultrymen have shown a preference for started chicks—chicksthree weeks old—and the Continental Hatchery of Illinois will supply them at prices which are sure to please. Mr. Burman suggests that reservations for both "day old" and started chicks be made shead of time so that there will be no disappointments regarding delivery.
